

ELVEN TRINKETS

FOR 5TH EDITION D&D

BY RYAN CHADDOCK

❖ EMAIL: RYANCHADDOCK@GMAIL.COM

❖ TWITTER: @CHADDOCKR

❖ G+: RYANCHADDOCK

D100 TRINKET

1. A child-sized short bow with a broken string.
2. A golden amulet in the shape of a bug on a leaf.
3. A spider trained to perch on your shoulder when you walk.
4. An arrow covered in intricate carvings depicting elven life in the forest.
5. A small crystal globe that glows yellow during the day and white at night.
6. A pinecone from a faraway land.
7. A pair of green leather archery bracers.
8. A map of the surrounding area indicating the locations of various wolf dens.
9. A shard of blue crystal that produces a beautiful chime when struck.
10. A pair of leather trousers embroidered with leaf designs.
11. The carcass of a woodland animal, fashioned into a hat.
12. A smooth stone that, when held, removes all fear of heights.
13. Five silver bells on a string that seem to sooth the tempers of elves when jingled.
14. A fur-lined cloak that looks like a pile of leaves.
15. A scrap of paper inscribed with a haunting elvish poem.
16. A tiny silver knife etched with ivy patterns.
17. A circular sheet of crystal that reveals elven constellations when the stars are seen through it.
18. A wooden fife that cannot be heard by humans.
19. A crow trained to carry a message parcel to any elf whose name is whispered to it.
20. A loaf of herbed bread wrapped in cloth.
21. A bottle of golden wine.
22. Boots made for climbing trees.
23. The hilt of an ancient sword bearing the elvish words: "Dawn rises before death's fall."
24. A needle made of gold that can pierce any hide.
25. A tiny lute painted with the images of faeries and food.
26. A crystal goblet that fills to the brim with red wine at the end of every hour.
27. A crown fashioned from vines.
28. A scroll bearing an urgent message for an elven lord.
29. A small lifelike painting of an elven woman casting a spell.
30. A food knife that never tarnishes or rusts.
31. A hemp necklace that amplifies the wearer's voice slightly.
32. A quiver bearing the house sigil of an elven lord.
33. A pouch full of tangy berries.
34. A leather-bound book full of pages made of dried leaves.
35. The skull of a goblin.
36. A walking stick, the top of which is a carving of a mountain lion's head.
37. The scabbard of a curved dagger, inlaid with patterns of the moon and stars.
38. A wineskin filled with animal musk.
39. A wooden carving of a mythical beast.
40. A booklet depicting the hand gestures employed in casting spells.
41. An arrow painted red.
42. Three edible insects that induce hallucinations when consumed.
43. A few feet of rope made from spider silk.
44. A list of 33 elven names for a particular dragon known to frequent this area.
45. A stinky tincture that makes wounds hurt less when applied.
46. Three silver balls that float about your head.
47. A pair of logs that produce fire without smoke when burnt.
48. An ink drawing of an elven goddess shooting a dragon with a bow.
49. A wooden plate that cleans itself after each meal.
50. A dowsing rod.

D100 TRINKET

51. A studded bracer that just seems magical somehow.
52. A long stemmed flower that always points at the sun.
53. A leather pouch that keeps herbs fresh for months.
54. A glowing rock that was once worshipped as a god.
55. A broken harlequin mask.
56. A long book full of elven advice, most of which amounts to “stay the course.”
57. A short, forest-colored coat with broad shoulders.
58. An ink pot that never spills.
59. A small pouch full of burnt up expended spell components.
60. Articulated metal armor that covers a single slender finger.
61. A broken bell that rings with the sound of lost love.
62. A pair of wooden earrings.
63. A rock that projects colored light onto surfaces, such as walls, ceilings, or tree canopies.
64. Two sharp teeth from a large predator, enchanted to stay near each other at all times.
65. A tunic that smells like fresh herbs and soil.
66. A broken lyre made of a strange orange metal.
67. A wooden puzzle box with no known solution.
68. A slender circlet that grants the wearer memories of an ancient war between the elves and a now dead race.
69. An inordinately heavy and unwieldy ceremonial staff.
70. The face of an elf, broken off a marble statue.
71. An elven gardening spade, depicting a broad leaf as its blade.
72. Soft leather armoring that only covers the right arm, shoulder, and hand. [Provides no AC bonus.]
73. A tearstained love letter from an elven lady, breaking things off with her human lover.
74. The carapace of a breathtakingly beautiful beetle.
75. A notebook detailing an elvish account of an important treaty being signed over 400 years ago.
76. Two wooden children’s dolls: one elf and one orc; each armed with a tiny sword.
77. A sand timer that drops a single grain each day.
78. A bottle of a perfume that smells like summer in the forest.
79. An ornately inlaid and painted wooden box containing the mummified remains of a small animal.
80. The handle of a sword that has rusted in the ground for a thousand years.
81. A circular stone covered in tiny, almost imperceptible engraved patterns.
82. The magically preserved eye of an extremely rare and fantastical creature.
83. A bandoleer for arrows.
84. A hand-broom enchanted to constantly sweep up whatever room it’s placed in.
85. A scroll containing an elvish epic poem recounting a war few remember anymore.
86. A crystal that speaks directions (in elvish) to the nearest elven city, when held aloft.
87. A plaque commemorating the death of an elven hero.
88. An elven-made leather saddle, designed to accommodate the back spikes of a giant lizard mount of some kind.
89. A pair of strung together monocles, tinted to protect the eyes from sunlight.
90. A golden bracelet, engraved with elvish words commemorating the unity of two great elven houses.
91. A small glass bottle that purifies water, making it safer to drink.
92. A convincing replica of a large ruby, made entirely of crystalized sugar.
93. A rod of rune-etched copper which glows green in the presence of powerful necromantic magic.
94. A slender wine glass made of stained bone, rimmed with gold.
95. A black wooden scepter that curls into a spiral at the end.
96. A potion that induces vomiting.
97. A stone bearing the names and symbols of the most powerful elven houses in the land.
98. A bronze coin used as a good luck charm in elven lands.
99. A wooden trap for catching rabbits.
100. A fist-sized lump of moss that seems to be breathing.